Electric School Buses Take Charge

SAU 24 Superintendent Jacqueline Coe proudly announced the deployment of four new electric buses into the SAU 24 fleet, funded by the Environmental Protection Agency's Clean Bus Program. This milestone achievement came months ahead of the initial schedule, according to a school release, marking a significant step towards sustainable transportation in the SAU.

Coe highlighted the role of Student Transportation of America (STA) that made this award possible.

"Our bus contractor, STA, pursued and was awarded the four buses on behalf of SAU 24," Coe said in the release. "I am excited that these electric buses help us in our efforts to bring energy savings projects to the SAU."

Gregg Stinson, Vice President of Operations for Student Transportation of NH, expressed his enthusiasm when the awards were first announced.

"STA has long been committed to achieving a greener environment with a goal of zero emissions," he said. "The EPA's Clean School Bus Program will undoubtedly help accelerate the industry's move to cleaner transportation options for students. These grant opportunities enable school bus electrification to become more of a reality for providers and school boards alike, and students truly benefit from greener technology."

The Clean School Bus program aims to prioritize districts serving low-income, rural and Tribal communities, where the introduction of greener technology

At this conference, JSRHS team members joined students from 17 different schools from four states. They discussed and debated current and historical events in three different crisis committees that were organized and run by the students at Winchester High School. During the conference, over $500 was raised for the charity Cafe Myrna, for domestic abuse survivors. Freezing Small Portions

By Sharon Czarnecki

I once bought a silicone cupcake/muffin "pan" to try something new. I was disappointed. The items did not brown very well.

BUT, I am still very happy I have them because they turned out to be perfect for freezing small portions of soup, leftover spaghetti sauce, etc. What makes them so wonderful is their flexibility. You can literally take the frozen items and turn your pan inside out to release it.

Historical Tidbits

By Tom Flaherty

Not only did Weare have a golf course at one time, it had a ski hill called "Lakeview Ski Area, near Horace Lake, which was active from the 1950s-1970s and run by Chester Colburn and family.

Weare also had another ski hill called "White Birch' near Duck Pond Road.

Thanks to Arlon Chaffee, we now know the full story of this ski area that operated in Weare. Here are his details:

"Lakeview Ski Area was located in Weare, NH, in the vicinity of Horace Lake (hence, "lake view.") It was run by the Coburn family (local landowners, turned developers) and featured, as I recall, two trails served by separate tows. One trail was a modest slope, wide and accommodating, while the other (which I never had the nerve to try) was narrower, steeper and required a certain amount of stopping skills that I never developed.

It had a warming hut where you could get a cup of hot chocolate.

I recall my parents taking carloads of us and friends up there on winter weekends, in the days just as buckle boots were coming into fashion, and I'd tighten the rawhide laces of my hand-me-down leather boots and strap them (actually bear trap 'em) onto old Northland wooden skis. Bamboo poles? You bet! My strongest memories include barreling flat out down the easy slope to the strains of "Penny Lane" blaring from their p.a. system, wearing through not one, but both layers of my suede mitts while generating enough "traction" on the rope tow to get back to the top, but, sadly, never learning how to stop well enough to avoid colliding with someone at the bottom of the run – or, more likely, creating a spectacular "yard sale."

This was a family run business, but I believe the children grew up or economics became a factor. In any event, the Coburns moved on to other ventures (time shares and real estate) in the area and the ski runs shut down in the late 60s or so. Mike Coburn (a son) still lives in the area, married to one of my wife's school buddies from New Boston.

USGS. The ski area started at the building in the top left corner and continued down toward the lake. You can still make out part of the slopes and trails. According to а brochure obtained during a March 2003 visit to Lakeshore Village Resort, which is now on the site of the former ski area, it was an "upside down" area with parking and lodge at the top of the slopes. It was a family area with skiing, skating, tobogganing and snowshoeing. They had two electric rope tows, tow slopes and two trails. The two main slopes were lit for night skiing. Rentals were available. Lakeview was 75 miles from Boston, 23 miles from Manchester and 16 miles from Concord, just off of Route 114. The area was open weekends, holidays and school vacations and would operate at other times with reservations.

Windows on one end of the lodge allowed a clear view of the junior slope and windows at the front gave a view of the advanced slope and lake below. There was also a sun balcony attached to the lodge. (This structure is still standing and is now a private home.) There was a corner fireplace on one end of the lodge and a rental area at the other end. The lodge also had a snack bar with a complete kitchen and served lunches.

The junior slope had a 450-foot rope. The lower half of this slope was used for beginners. To the left of this was a toboggan run and toboggans were available for rental. There was a trail called "Snow Ball Trail," which connected the Junior slope to the Advanced slope. To the right of this slope was the "Blizzard Trail." The advanced slope and the Blizzard Trail had a decent pitch to them, but were fairly short. The area had a 150-200 foot vertical drop. During Lakeview's last year of operation, rates were $3 for a full day adult ticket and $1.50 for a full day junior ticket. Season passes were $25 for an adult, $15 for a junior and $40 for a family."

I Love It!

By Diane Padilla

I am a volunteer at Concord Hospital and I love it! I'm one of the people who handle the book cart, a library on wheels. We bring magazines, puzzles and books of all genres to the patients. A hospital stay, even a short one, can be a lonely and isolating experience for patients; a book or magazine can break this down and make the stay a more pleasant one.

We do more than bring books and magazines to a patient's bedside. It offers an opportunity for conversing with patients and listening to their stories. Sometimes a volunteer is the only person a patient may have contact with, other than the medical staff.

On certain days, our volunteers will bring a therapy dog, and our canine companions bring a lot of joy and cheer to our patients. Volunteering is good for those who benefit from the services and for the volunteers as well. There's something about helping others that is beneficial to the volunteer. And it's one of the best ways to help your local community.

So Many Volunteers

Bv David Erikson

The thousands of towns all around this country, around the world, I suppose, couldn't function without volunteers.

Town boards, for starters. Select, planning, school boards, conservation, parks and rec, libraryonly the Selectpeople get any meager compensation. If they billed the town for their time, it might be enough to cover the first week and a half perhaps. I haven't listed half the opportunities there are to serve in our town.

We couldn't run our elections without the volunteers, the friendly people behind the desks, often people I'm glad to see. The supervisors of the checklist are over at the side. Thank them, too, as you pass by or switch back to "Undeclared" as I used to do every time. Now, I can't volunteer for those roles because I plan to run again for state representative. I have strong differences of policy and opinion with those currently serving, but I can't accuse them of being in it for the money at $100 a year! I'd call that volunteering, too.

I stopped at the Senior Center to ask about the senior lunches today. Guess who runs all that? Some of these folks fill so many needs. "Weare in the World" is run by volunteers, too. It's the best way to stay informed on local stuff. There are pleas for things you can help with in every issue, so why not pitch in?

Often the people who step up are retired. They could be in Florida on the beach or the golf course, but instead, they are working for nothing, for us. Thank yous seem a good start and then, consider where you can help.

Volunteers

I can't squeeze another thing in, you know! I told them last week I simply can't go.

But the lady who does it is sick, you see. Not sure who will do it, if it isn't me.

It won't be for long I've been told several times. I guess I can manage and help hold the line.

You ask how much time? I'm really not sure. I just have to help them do the brochure.

Ten hours a week, 20 at most. Should be a snap, I know you can cope.

You've heard it pays well? Oh not so, my dear. This "job's" like the others. It's all volunteer.

Food Pantry Volunteer

By Judy Foss

I would like to thank Melissa Boudreau for running Weare's Food Pantry. I don't know exactly how long she's been doing it, but I believe it's been at least five years.

As far as I know, she is a one-woman show, occasionally receiving help from her family. She juggles the food pantry with work and family responsibilities, always with a beautiful smile. She has deep compassion, a wonderful heart, for those she serves. Weare is blessed to have this dear person working to ensure food security for its residents.

Tell Us About: Rescue Dogs

May 20th is National Rescue Dog's Day. If you have rescued a dog, let us know your favorite story about him or her.

Did your family adopt a stray when you were a kid? What are your best memories of that?
